

— TOURING —

In addition to the main events covered in other sections of this book, there will undoubtedly be some cases where, either during the day of the main function, or on the days before and after, the visiting dignitaries will also be scheduled for a tour of Lodges or scenic attractions in and around the same locale as the major activity. It's also conceivable that, due to time constraints, the visit of the dignitary to that part of the country might consist only of the short visits comprising the tour, much like the "whistle stops" popular in campaigning. Although the variety of such tours is understandably limited only by your imagination, your guests will find any type more enjoyable if these key points are kept in mind:
